

Theatre Arts and Performance Studies

The Department of Theatre Arts and Performance Studies is the intellectual and artistic center at Brown for faculty and students interested in the aesthetic, historical, literary, practical and theoretical explorations of performance in global perspective – theatre, dance, speech, performance art, and performative “roles” in everyday life. The Department’s distinguished faculty consists of leading scholars and artists who are at the forefront in researching and teaching new and innovative methodologies produced by the intersection of the study of craft and the study of history and theory.

Every season, the Department mounts theatre and dance productions, along with a multitude of academic events and programs in theatre and performance studies, including Brown University-based and guest artists and scholars. Students are active in every aspect of production—learning the rigors of craft through participation in production as well as through class work in acting and directing, dance, playwriting, movement, history, theory, design, technical theatre, intermedial performance, and performance ethnography.

For additional information, please visit the department’s website: <http://www.brown.edu/academics/theatre-arts-performance-studies/>

Theatre Arts and Performance Studies Concentration Requirements

The Department of Theatre Arts and Performance Studies (TAPS) is the intellectual and artistic center for the aesthetic, historical, literary, practical, and theoretical explorations of performance in global perspective – theatre, dance, speech, time-based art, and even performative “roles” in everyday life. The TAPS concentration offers three tracks with many points of overlap among them: Performance Studies, Theatre Arts, and Dance. Concentrators gain exposure to a broad spectrum of performance modes and methods -- acting, directing, dance, and writing, and chose an avenue of focus among them. Everyone graduates having studied craft, gained familiarity with history, and investigated the role of performance arts in culture.

Theatre Arts Track

This concentration combines the study of dramatic literature, theatre history, performance theory, and studio work in the various theatre arts. All concentrators in Theatre Arts will gain practical experience through the study of acting and directing as well as in the technical production of plays, preparing students in the practical study of a cross-section of the vital aspects of theatre craft, including one class in either dance or speech. An essential aim of the concentration track is the engagement of students in performance procedures (acting, dancing, directing, choreography, design, playwriting, dramaturgy, etc.) in order to experience the inter-relationships among social contexts, dramatic texts and theatrical enactments. Along with practical study in craft, concentrators will graduate having studied theatre history and performance theory in global perspective. The study of theatre history provides a Theatre Arts concentrator with the necessary background to understand a variety of dramatic and theatrical forms. The study of performance theory enhances a student’s ability to ask fundamental questions about the role of theatre in social, political, cultural and cross-cultural arenas.

Students wishing to enroll as concentrators in Theatre Arts and Performance Studies and take the Theatre Arts track should see the undergraduate Theatre Arts track advisor, in order to discuss options that will best serve their interests.

Basic Theatre Arts Track Requirements -- 10 Credits

TAPS 0700	Introduction to Theatre, Dance and Performance (Required Courses)	1
TAPS 0230 or TAPS 0220	Acting Persuasive Communication	1

TAPS 0250	Introduction to Technical Theatre and Production	1
TAPS 1230	Global Theatre and Performance: Paleolithic to the Threshold of Modernity	1
TAPS 1240	Performance Historiography and Theatre History	1
TAPS 1250	Late Modern and Contemporary Theatre and Performance	1

Theatre Studies electives: 4 elective courses, one of which must be theory, history, or literature chosen in consultation with the advisor according to the area of interest (i.e., acting, direction, playwriting, design/technical theatre). Additionally, following consultation with the advisor, one of the electives may be taken outside the TAPS department.

Total Credits 10

Performance Studies Track

The Performance Studies track in the Theatre Arts and Performance Studies concentration offers a base for students interested in a variety of performance forms, performance media, or in intermedial art. A concentrator in this track will study the multiple modes in which live performance articulates culture, negotiates difference, constructs identity, and transmits collective historical traditions and memories. Because Performance Studies is not primarily invested in one performance mode over another (such as theatre or dance), a concentrator will gain exposure to a broad spectrum of performance modes. Studying ritual, play, game, festival, spectacle and a broad spectrum of “performance behaviors” under the umbrella of Performance Studies, a concentrator will graduate having investigated the role of performance in culture, including performative acts in everyday life, political enactment, ritual behavior, aesthetic or representational practices, and social role or the performance of subjectivity. The history of aesthetic performance practices (such as the histories of theatre and/or dance) will be an important part of this track, serving to ground inquiry into the broader spectrum of performance study. Students will craft their electives on this track from a wide selection of courses both within the Department of Theatre Arts and Performance Studies and across the university. The study of performance behavior across mediums such as dance, theatre, ritual, and orature allows for geographic and historical flexibility as not all cultures parse theatre from dance, nor, historically, genres of religious or political ritual from genres of entertainment, play, or game. At least one of the ten required classes must show geographic or cultural breadth, and be approved as such by the undergraduate concentration advisor. Participation in practical classes in modes of performance is also required.

Students wishing to enroll as concentrators in Theatre Arts and Performance Studies and take the Performance Studies track should see the undergraduate Performance Studies track advisor, in order to discuss options that will best serve their interests.

Dance Track

The Dance track of the Theatre Arts and Performance Studies concentration engages students in the study of dance, movement, and other forms of kinesthetic performance. Emphasizing dance technique, choreography/composition, and theories and histories of global forms of dance practice, concentrators in this track will study how multiple global dance forms articulate culture, negotiate difference, construct identity, and transmit collective historical traditions. Concentrators will receive instruction in composition and technique, and engage with dance, theatre, and performance production within the department to understand dance within a network of performance practices.

For all concentrators, regardless of track:

In cases where dual concentrations are declared, the Department allows two courses to be counted toward both concentrations.

Capstone Project

Every concentrator will complete a capstone and 5-page reflection paper by the final semester of their senior year. The purpose of the capstone is to synthesize the core tenets of theory and practice from our concentration learning objectives in the form of a student-initiated creative project, experience, or a non-honors research paper. Students pursuing Honors fulfill the capstone requirement by successfully completing a senior thesis (see Honors section).

Please note that while the experience being reflected on for the Capstone may occur as early as the junior year, the reflective paper must be written and submitted in the senior year.

The 5-page reflection paper must be written and submitted in the final semester of the senior year, and completes the capstone requirement. The following options can qualify as the experiential component of a capstone project, and can be executed during junior or senior year.

- Participation in a Senior Slot Production.
- Major participation in a TAPS Department / Sock & Buskin Production. (i.e. acting, assistant directing, designer, dramaturg, stage manager)
- Extension of an existing curricular, co-curricular, or extra-curricular project.
- Revision or expansion of an existing final paper from any prior TAPS theory or history class.
- Major participation in a non-departmental campus production, performance or academic event. (i.e. student theatre, student dance (<https://taps.brown.edu/student-opportunities/student-groups/>) group (<https://taps.brown.edu/student-opportunities/student-groups/>), self-produced performance or event at the Granoff)

Students must create a Capstone project plan in consultation with the TAPS DUS. Finalized project proposals must be submitted via email for approval by the DUS no later than October 1st for students graduating in spring, and September 15th for students graduating in fall.

Capstone proposals must be approved the TAPS DUS.

Capstone Reflection Paper Due Dates

- For students graduating in spring, the capstone reflection paper is due March 1st of the senior year.
- For students graduating in fall, the capstone reflection paper is due November 1st of the senior year.

Capstone Reflection Paper

Please email the DUS a 5-page reflection paper addressing the following writing points:

- A brief description of the project completed, including details about who, what, when and where the project took place. If you revised a paper, detail which class the paper was originally written for; and how you revised the paper, etc.
- An examination of how you used knowledge, skills and research methods acquired in the concentration to conceptualize, do and complete the project, with a frank assessment of the project's success or ways in which it could have been improved.

The DUS will assess and approve the paper if all of the criteria above are met. The reflection will be assessed for clarity, honesty and depth of self-reflection and encapsulation of your experience of the TAPS curriculum.

Please note: Students should refer to the Brown Arts Institute student funding (<https://arts.brown.edu/institute/grants/rolling-grants/>) opportunities and consult with the staff regarding space availability and support.

Senior Honors Thesis

Honors are awarded for theses in all concentration tracks, and satisfies the capstone requirement. Candidates for the senior honors program should have an outstanding academic record, must apply to the Department for approval, and enroll in TAPS 1990 in Semesters VII and VIII. All theses are substantive pieces of writing. Some theses are strictly academic. Other honors theses may include a creative component (such as the directing of a play, a solo performance piece, the study and performance of a major role, or the design of a production) but the thesis itself will include a critical, written work based in research relative to that artwork. For creative work submitted for honors, the essay should accompany the play/ performance, reporting on the research and the process of creation although the play/ performance itself can count as the substantive written work. Please note that departmental support is not available for productions at this time.

Students should refer to the Brown Arts Institute student funding (<https://arts.brown.edu/institute/grants/rolling-grants/>) opportunities and consult with the staff regarding space availability and support.

Students should contact the honors advisor by the end of Semester V to discuss proposals, thesis guidelines, and scheduling TAPS 1990 the honors thesis course in Semesters VII and VIII.

- For students graduating in spring submit proposals to the Department in Semester VI by April 1st.
- For students graduating in fall submit proposals to the Department in Semester VI by October 1st.

Proposals should be submitted electronically to taps@brown.edu. (taps@brown.edu)

Theatre Arts and Performance Studies Graduate Program

The Department of Theatre Arts and Performance Studies offers the following graduate programs:

- Doctor of Philosophy (Ph.D.) in Theatre Arts and Performance Studies.

Theatre Arts and Performance Studies

TAPS 0001A. Trust Yourself: The Practice of Artistic Impulse.

Using theatre/ live performance as a point of entry, students will learn how to preserve their work and findings through digital mediums: film, radio, photo, etc. By the end of this course students will not only have a portfolio of their growth which can be used for future artistic opportunities, but they will have the confidence in their unique perspective and the know-how to expand on that in a useful way.

This class will follow a produce-first format. From various prompts, found materials, and sources of inspiration and intrigue, students will extrapolate and expand on impulses. It is my hope that by the end of this course that students will not only have confidence in their work, but have had the opportunity to apply newly applied skills to these impulses.

TAPS 0030. Introduction to Acting and Directing.

Explores basic acting/directing concepts from a variety of perspectives including the use of the actor's imagination/impulsivity in the creation of truthful, dramatic performance; the body, as a way of knowing and communicating knowledge; and the voice, as a means of discovering and revealing emotion/thought. There is a mandatory tech requirement and some evening hours are required. Please go to the TAPS website for specifics on admission and the technical requirement (<https://taps.brown.edu/undergraduate/undergraduate-courses%23/additional-info>). Enrollment limited to 18 students. Instructor permission required. No permission will be given during pre-registration.

TAPS 0080. Asian American Theatre and Performance in Transnational Contexts.

From the founding of the East West Players in San Francisco in 1965 to Toronto's now thriving Fu-Gen Theatre, formed in 2002, embodied performance has long played a central role in the formation of an Asian diasporic identity, movement, and politics in the Americas. This intro-level course explores the history and development of Asian American theatre and performance. Through a variety of critical, historical, and aesthetic texts (theatre, literature, contemporary art) we will consider encounters and exchanges in Asian American and Asian Canadian theatre and performance histories as one way to critically engage the "transnational" within Asian American Studies.

TAPS 0080A. Feminist Aesthetics and Performance Philosophy.

A theoretical and practical investigation of art and performance from feminist and performance philosophical perspectives, focusing on the topics of perception, experience, thinking, embodiment, and the practice of everyday life. The course will introduce students to theories and methods from feminist aesthetics and the emerging field of performance philosophy. We will study feminist critiques of aesthetic categories (Battersby, Cixous, Grosz, Korsmeyer, Piper, Scheman, Ziarek) and feminist practices of art and performance. We will combine our theoretical work with practical explorations in the studio. No prior experience with art or performance-making required.

TAPS 0085. Uncomfortable Media (MCM 0901H).

Interested students must register for MCM 0901H.

TAPS 0100. Playwriting I.

A workshop for students who have little or no previous experience in writing plays. Students will be introduced to a variety of technical and imaginative considerations through exercises, readings and discussions. Course is not open to those who have taken Advanced Playwriting (TAPS 1500, formerly LITR 1010C and TSDA 1500). Enrollment is limited to 12 undergraduates per section. A limited number of spaces are reserved for incoming and transfer students. Instructor permission required. S/NC.

TAPS 0101. Playwriting II.

An intensive workshop for students who have little or no previous experience in writing plays. Students will be introduced to a variety of technical and imaginative considerations through exercises, readings and discussions. Course is not open to those who have taken Advanced Playwriting (TAPS 1500, formerly LITR 1010C and TSDA 1500). Enrollment is limited to 14 undergraduates per section. A limited number of spaces are reserved for incoming and transfer students. Instructor permission required. S/NC.

TAPS 0150. Screenwriting I (LITR 0110E).

Interested students must register for LITR 0110E.

TAPS 0200. Playwriting II.

This course is an artistic laboratory and seminar that builds upon the fundamentals of Playwriting I. In this course we will bolster our writing practice with a toolbox of strategies to generate new writing, develop a revision process using peer feedback and exercises, read and discuss various plays and their mechanics, cultivate and act upon our creative curiosities to discover the forms that our ideas and stories want to be held in. TAPS 0210. Dancing the African Diaspora.

This seminar/studio course introduces students to theories, debates, and critical frameworks in African Diaspora Dance Studies. It asks: What role does dance play throughout the African diaspora? What makes a dance 'black'? How do conceptualizations of gender and sexuality inform our reading of dancing bodies? Using African diaspora, critical dance, performance, and black feminist frameworks, we will examine the history, politics, and aesthetics of "black dance".

TAPS 0220. Persuasive Communication.

Introduces public speaking, and helps students develop confidence in public speaking through the presentation of persuasive speeches. Primarily for seniors. Limited to 15. Instructor's permission required. No permission will be given during pre-registration; interested students should sign up well in advance on the TAPS 0220 waitlist (application form is at https://docs.google.com/forms/d/e/1FAIpQLSdWavq-L_fukiBylGrPFdVpzCzLXCfjFID9K7I7MMjaFbwI6Q/viewform?usp=sf_link) and attend the first day of class. Attendance is mandatory. The application/waitlist process does not apply to students registering for the Summer term through the School of Professional Studies.

TAPS 0240. Africana Feminisms.

Beginning with the institution of slavery and carrying on to the present day, we will examine the field of Black Feminist Thought—or, the political, social, and economic forces that shape black American women's lives. We will ask: How do black women's lives, labor, and cultural productions lay bare the limits of maleness and whiteness as dominant frames? Why and how do black women matter to us all? Together, we'll ride the three waves of black feminism to explore the ways black women's cultural production has been consequential to notions of citizenship, liberation, and culture.

TAPS 0250. Introduction to Technical Theatre and Production.

This course is an introduction to the concepts and practices of stagecraft. You will be introduced to different elements of stagecraft such as scenery, lighting, and properties. Lecture and lab classes will also cover the proper and safe use of tools, the choosing of building materials, methods of construction, and the installation of electrics, scenery, and properties for the department of Theatre Arts and Performance Studies productions.

TAPS 0350. Black Performance Theory.

This interdisciplinary, reading/writing-intensive course examines the notion of blackness through theorizations of performance. It pursues the following questions: What is black authenticity? What are the rubrics with which 'authentic' blackness is measured? How is black performance political? Discussions and written work will interrogate the slipperiness of, desire for, and policing of blackness in order to trouble conceptions of race as a biological essence.

TAPS 0360. Viewpoints Technique: The Moving Body in Relation to Time, Space, and Ensemble.

The Viewpoints Technique systematically breaks down the elements of TIME and SPACE, providing a precise language for makers to communicate about dynamic staging and offering performing artists the tools to direct themselves more successfully from within composition. An indispensable practice for ensemble awareness, the Viewpoints Technique invites us to think more expansively about composition across performing arts disciplines. All performers can benefit from this rigorous investigation of time and space and the pursuit of cohesive ensemble.

TAPS 0700. Introduction to Theatre, Dance and Performance.

An introduction to the breadth of topics covered in the TAPS Department, this class is a gateway to the concentration open to all students interested in live arts. We will explore how, where, and why theatre, dance and performance are made and investigate their relationship to broader culture and society. Students will learn basics: how to read a play, how to appreciate dance, and how to approach the variety of venues, histories, and methods involved in production. Overlaps with other media will be explored. Visits from TAPS faculty will dovetail with the season of offerings on the TAPS main stage.

TAPS 0800D. Asian/American Performance and Aesthetics.

This course examines performances in and of the Asias, paying special attention to gendered and racialized constructions of Asias and Asians in the popular imagination. Working at the intersections of Asian/American Studies and Performance Studies, this course considers the ways in which Asianness emerges from performance along the multiple axes of race, gender, sexuality and class. In analyzing a broad spectrum of aesthetic practices, including theatre, film, music and performance art, we will explore what Asianness means within the gendered and racialized circuitry of global exchanges of commodities, labors, bodies, affects, and discourses.

TAPS 0800E. Performance and Law: Staging Sovereignty in the Courtroom and the Theater.

In this course we explore the relationship between law and performance, and investigate the political stakes of doing so across various historical moments. From scripted proclamations of sovereignty during scenes of conquest to witness testimony in the infamous witch trials, legal processes often seem to rely on spectacle, drama, choreography, scripting—i.e., features associated with theatrical performances. Through case studies we learn to interpret legal events as performances and vice versa (staged performances as legal events). Can a work of theater or dance legislate? Adjudicate? Restore justice? Reading intensive and interdisciplinary course. Students across arts and social science backgrounds welcome.

TAPS 0800F. Performance and the Crisis of Scientific Reality.

Trust is a constant public problem. We are bombarded by competing versions of reality. A century ago, a 'crisis of reality' emerged after the breakdown of positivist science. Enduring truths gave way to contingent particulars in modern life. This course investigates how the experiments of artists and scientists contributed to the philosophical re-shaping of 'reality' as something not only historically made, but also performed. By mingling key texts from the philosophy of science with complementary texts and media from aesthetics and performance, this course focuses on the way that reality has been re-staged across overlapping domains of art and science.

TAPS 0800G. The Body Issue: An Introduction.

Notions about bodies determine what or who is normal, deviant, transgressive, healthy or ill, and who belongs to the human. From philosophical questions about the nature of the body, to issues of gender, race, sexuality, trauma, disability, artificial intelligence, and death, we will see how bodies carry, produce, and perform meanings. With different artworks, we will examine how bodies are being represented, discuss what is being expected from bodies, and speculate on the possibility for bodies to no longer be an issue. This is a reading intensive and interdisciplinary course. Students across arts, humanities, and social science backgrounds welcome.

TAPS 0800H. Performance and Technology: The Art and Science of the Artificial.

This seminar will explore the recent rise of "artificial intelligence" from the interdisciplinary perspectives afforded by performance studies. Performance studies is ideally situated to study algorithms, not as mathematical abstractions, but as material practices predating human tools and modern machines. Specifically, we will look to the emergence of the concept of artificial intelligence as it emerged from wide-ranging algorithmic practices from the mid- 20th century to the present. We will consider the subsequent rise of automation in fields as diverse as financial analysis, climate modeling, social media, crime prediction, and even artistic practice.

TAPS 0800I. (Re)Imagining the Body: What can a Body do?.

How does the body perform itself? And what at all is a body? These are the underlying questions to the fundamental question profoundly binding philosophy and performance: 'What can a body do?'. From philosophical questions about the nature of the body, to issues of gender, race, sexuality, trauma, disability, artificial intelligence, and death, we will see how bodies carry, produce, and perform meanings. With different visual and performance artworks, we will examine how bodies are being represented, discuss what is being expected from bodies, and speculate on the possibility for bodies to be thought of differently. This is a reading intensive and interdisciplinary course. Students from all backgrounds are welcome.

TAPS 0800J. Of Emotions Unbound: Feeling Middle Eastern Theatre and Performance.

How is the emotional, bodily experience of watching a theatrical production, a film, or reading a text alone different from the experience of doing so with friends in a dim room? Do feelings/moods sparked by art forms differ across bodies, regions, cultures, and media? Are sensory emotion concepts such as melancholia, euphoria, sorrow, sadness universal? Or are they historically, cross-culturally felt, framed, and situated? Do emotions, or affects, evaporate after a while? Or are they contagious, jumping across regions and bodies, perpetually re-membered from our past shaping our future? This introductory course will look at a wide range of aesthetic-cultural forms within broader political, social, historical contexts in the Middle East and its diaspora to delve into these philosophical queries that help us understand the highly complex region in terms of emotions transgressing its physical-geographic, Eurocentric, Orientalist conceptualizations.

TAPS 0800K. Islam between Theatre and Performance.

This course explores the nuanced relationship among concepts of theatre, performance and Islam in diverse texts and contexts. Our readings cut across disciplinary divides, weaving together theatre history, Islamic intellectual-cultural history, theory of performance, and theory of religion to support a dynamic, critical approach to our field of inquiry. We will discuss how attention to theatricality and performance may enrich our understanding of representations of Islam by Muslims, representations of Islam by non-Muslims, and the relationships between these representations. Taking as a point of departure the extreme opposition between "Islam" and "theatre" that contemporary discourse typically supposes when overlapping these topics, we will evaluate this convention and consider the reasons for its long and continuing prevalence.

TAPS 0800L. Devised Theatre.

Devised theatre is a practice of collaborative creation in which artists redefine the traditional roles of actor, director, playwright, and designer. Often, a devised theatre maker will do all of the above. A devised performance itself can take on a dizzying array of forms, anything from a solo musical to a site-specific dance installation to a guerrilla clown intervention to a Shakespeare play. This course focuses on developing an artist's toolkit for devising, pulling from a variety of traditions from clowning to creative writing. Students will work closely with each other to make performances of increasing magnitude throughout the semester, culminating in a full-class devised performance piece.

TAPS 0800M. Beyond The Rainbow: Black Otherwhises in the Work of Ntozake Shange.

This course is designed to introduce students to the wide range of work by poet, playwright, and performer Ntozake Shange (1948-2018). We will discuss the historical periods, global events, social movements, communities, and art movements that shaped her work and her thinking. We will respond critically, creatively and at times collectively to Shange's work.

TAPS 0800N. The Semiotics of the Broadway Musical.

In this class, we will explore the history, present, and future of one of the quintessentially American artforms—the Broadway musical—by investigating its unique combination of music, drama, dance, spectacle, and commerce. Our focus will be on investigating the different ways that the musical produces social meanings. To do so, the course will introduce concepts from semiotics—a method for studying the production and communication of meaning through various systems of “signification.” Surveying the history of the artform in four broad phases, we will how musical theater has represented quintessentially human conflicts around identity and belonging. Assignments will include weekly response posts, a midterm paper, in-class presentations, a final project, and opportunities to perform.

TAPS 0810. Performing Italy - Body, Voice and Politics: A Journey within Italian Theatre.

How does performance comment on, interact with, and influence society? And to what extent is this question culturally specific? Performing Italy focuses on Nobel-prize-winner Dario Fo, Franca Rame, Commedia dell'Arte, and Teatro di Narrazione. Engaging with theatrical materials, we will conduct comparative work driven by the students' own experiences and explore how Italian theater intervened in historical and political discourses within Italian society between the 1960s and the 2000s. Topics will include: the years of lead (1970s terrorism); the influence of the Catholic church on Italian society; the Italian State and organized crime; gender and sexuality in modern Italian society.

A complete and well-seasoned actor has the ability to perform with specificity and ease, both vocally and physically. Specificity comes from an integration of speech and movement technique. Ease is only possible when a mastery of technical skills reaches the point where the actor can integrate them without loss of spontaneity. The goal of this class is to give the student the fundamental techniques of voice and speech in relation to the body. Prerequisite: TAPS 0230. Enrollment limited to 16. TAPS 0930B. The Actor's Instrument: Improvisation.

This course is designed to help students explore the development of relationships in theatrical space without the benefit (or confinement) of a script. By cultivating and developing basic performance skills including spontaneity, self-awareness, creative use of the body and mind, access to the imagination, and collaborativity, this course has applications for actors and other performers interested in all types of performance as well as those interested in improvised performance specifically.

One of the intentions of this course is to generate truthful, creative, and collaborative play, which can lead naturally to material that is funny or humorous as an organic outcome of the moment. However, "comedy" or "improv comedy," which has a different set of intentions altogether, will be strongly discouraged in this course. "Getting laughs," as a goal in and of itself, manufactures unproductive pressure to "be clever" or to "succeed" in ways that are inconsistent with truly creative engagement.

TAPS 0930C. The Actor's Instrument: Stage Movement for Actors and Directors.

Students engage in a process of exploration that centers on the physical relationship of the actor to the physical reality of live performance on stage. The class is structured as a survey introduction to a variety of methods and targets beginning movers with a range of interests and performance applications. Students investigate a broad spectrum of contemporary, classic and non-western movement theories/approaches to better enhance the ability to be 3-dimensionally present in time and space and to develop skills in the art of non-textually based storytelling and performance.

TAPS 0930E. The Actor's Instrument: Clown.

Derived from the teachings of Jacques Lecoq and Philippe Gaulier, this course is physically-based, improvisational, loud and messy. Emphasis is on organic and intuitive response, timing and rhythms inherent in comedy, non-verbal expression, the relationship of the Actor to the Audience, and Play! Enrollment limited to 20. S/NC

TAPS 0930F. Explorations in Clown and Physical Play.

Participating in this course, you will learn how to value and share your own unique ridiculousness by transforming mistakes into opportunities and limitations into creative expression. Based in physical exploration and improvisation, this work will implore you to recognize your relationship to fear, expand your sense of humor, connect to an audience, and play with abandon. Inspired by various kinds of clowns throughout history, you will begin to create your own vocabulary of play that will organically accumulate into solo and group performance pieces.

TAPS 0950. Site-Specific Performance.

This class will offer an intensive exploration of the rich histories, theories, and practices of site-specific performance—that is, performances that take place beyond the traditional theatrical stage. Intended to cross-hatch between history, theory, and artistic practice, the class will study a range of examples of performance forms that have emerged in response to specific non-theatrical spaces. Students will also undertake a series of site-specific performance exercises and projects throughout the term, culminating in a public presentation in the form of a mini “festival” of original works of site-specific performance created by students in the class.

Songs are a powerful dramatic storytelling tool - we see them used all the time in media, alongside scripted dialogue and visual elements. In this class we will explore contemporary musicals, in all forms, and we will create songs that tell stories. Together we will investigate how dramatic songs are made, what they can be about, and who are our audiences. We will pay special attention to perspectives that have been left out of past musical storytelling, and we will discover ways that our songs can advocate for justice in the 21st century and beyond. TAPS 1251D. Unmasking the Technologies of White Supremacy.

This advanced undergraduate seminar looks to examine the re-emergent topics of white supremacy and fascism within the so-called post-truth political media landscape. We will proceed by returning to critiques of white male patriarchy at the heart of white supremacy. The course will follow three streams of critical theory and their attendant historical moments. The first section will draw from black feminism and critiques of fundamental American forms of freedom built upon the immobility of "the other" in the service of white racial capital. The second section of the course will contend with the recent rise of Proud Boys, Identity Europa, and the rise of the far-right in Eastern Europe through the lens of performance studies to understand the procedures of identification and aesthetics that lead to white supremacy.

TAPS 1251E. Embodiment, Materiality and Cultural Production.

This course investigates embodiment as one of many materials engaged in contemporary art and performance practices. We will explore concepts of body/mind, the haptic, interiority, intersubjectivity, experience, spatiality, temporality, relationality, liveness, and futurity and how it occurs within a wide variety of cultural productions. Course readings are drawn from dance studies, critical race studies, gender and sexuality studies, performance studies, and museum and curatorial studies. Our theoretical inquiries will culminate in the practical experience of crafting and producing an exhibition and/or live event. No prior performance or art-making experience is required, however, students with active art practices are encouraged to utilize this opportunity to create and present their own works.

A theater maker has a rare relationship with an audience. It is a relationship that holds the opportunity to engage the five senses (six, if you count the heart). With this thought, let us consider the theatricality of food. How are theater makers creating conversation and experience using language, memory, touch, taste, and smell to shape dramatic action or tell story? Students will prepare "theatrical food experiences" that provide opportunities to write and perform texts.

An inquiry into specific traditions of performance - ritual, traditional theatre, contemporary theatre, and performed behavior in more or less day-to-day life - that exist or have existed in various (mostly) Asian settings and have been studied and documented by scholars, film-makers, and theatre artists. The emphasis will be on traditions that use masks as means of transforming the identity of the performer and of the world presented in performance. No prior experience in theatrical performance or in the study of Asia or anthropology is assumed.

TAPS 1280B. The Creative Ensemble: Poetry in/to Performance.

Creative Ensemble: Poetry in/to Performance is an Interdisciplinary Arts course designed to develop skills in acting, improvisation, directing, design, visual storytelling, and writing. Professor Kym Moore (TAPS) and Enongo Lumumba-Kasongo (Music) are exploring the multiple dimension of Poetry: visual, aural, and sonic. Drawing on Enongo Lumumba-Kasongo's expertise as a rap lyricist and performer, students will also examine the ways in which the incorporation of hip hop poetics can shape a performance. Through research, experimentation, performance, participants will engage in a creative process that will culminate in an Ensemble-based final performance for the public. Application and Override Required.

TAPS 1280C. Stage Lighting II.

This class is a continuation of Stage Lighting. The major portion of this class is to give the student opportunity to create an actual design on stage for the Theatre Arts & Performance Studies (TAPS). Each individual student's main project will be to create a light design and be part of the production team of a Sock and Buskin produced show. The class will be an open forum for students to share ideas about their perspective designs. The class is also set up for the continuation of expanding their Vectorworks Spotlight and Lightwright skills, as well as light console programming.

TAPS 1280D. Perception/The Performativity of Neurology.

Time-based art and "theater" more specifically is a perfect manipulator of experience. Many creators of time-based art look for the "universal." In this course we will explore the science behind what we all have in common beyond shared-experience: brains. What happens in the minds of all truly happens. How can we use art to make our brains experience the same things? And what experiences can we curate for our brains based on science? Show don't tell. How can art take place in the room in front of us? How do we experience a performance rather than just "watch" it.

TAPS 1280E. Neurodiversity and Performance.

This course will use the framework of performance studies to investigate the emerging concepts of neurodiversity and neurodivergence—terms originally developed by autistic activists and self-advocates seeking to depathologize autism and other forms of neurological, mental, and cognitive difference. Course materials will incorporate perspectives from theatre, performance, and other aesthetic modes in addition to theoretical and scholarly work from disability studies, the history of science, and cultural studies. We will also ask how social movements such as neurodiversity and mad pride have used performative strategies to contest and reformulate how we understand disability and neurological difference.

TAPS 1280F. Introduction to Set Design.

In this class, students will be introduced to the aesthetics, creative process, and industry standard technical skills and tools necessary for designing theatrical scenery. Students will explore set design in a studio format that will focus on the development of both hand and digital design techniques, such as drafting, rendering, and scale model-making. This course is intended to lay the foundation for further study while empowering students to actively engage as set designers in productions on campus and beyond. TAPS 1280V. Theatre and Conquest in the Americas, from Cortes to NAFTA.

Explores the intimate relationship between theatre and conquest in the Americas as contained in missionary accounts, plays, performances and visual art from Cortés arrival to the present. Students will analyze plays and performances that stage the Spanish Conquest, consider the theatrical procedures of the conquest and examine theatrical representation as a methodology of conquest in the Americas.

TAPS 1280W. Native American Indigenous Theatre Performance.

Investigates Native American Indigenous Theatre performance through the study of new contemporary plays. Diverse performance styles informed by Indigenous ways of being and knowing, language, land and identity distinguish Native American Indigenous Theatre performance from Euro-American styles. Inquiry beyond western theatrical understandings is required to center Indigenous narratives and to grasp the rich spectrum offered in the storytelling. Methods of community knowledge production will include guest artists, orality, place / object-making and embodiment to contextualize Indigenous values and their application to decolonize performance spaces, methods of working and theatre-making. All are welcome!

TAPS 1280X. Compossible Worldbuilding.

This course involves project-making through the use of materials and influences that are in plain sight but perhaps not within the reach of what previous investigative methodologies allowed. Our small worlds will be mined for their alterity, their surreality, their complexity, their possibility and apparent impossibility. Students will be reading philosophy, fiction, movies, criticism, and above all, interior and exterior rooms and spaces that will feed into their worldbuilding.

TAPS 1280Y. Issues in Performance Studies.

Explores myriad ways of thinking, doing and talking about performance in the broad spectrum -- from social media to theatre, dance, film, and everyday life including identifications and disidentifications of gender, race, sex, and class. We may study museum installations, surgery, tourism, carnival, history reenactments, performance-based art, sports, and even dinner parties among other actions and sites. The objective is not to pin down a genre or category of performance but to understand performance variously as an analytic and practice, a form of lived history and way of being, including but not limited to traditional theater and dance practices.

TAPS 1280Z. A Producer Prepares: Advanced Topics in Curation, Ethics, and Arts Programming.

This course continues students' orientation to the complex relationships between cultural entrepreneurs, buyers, sellers, producers, managers, audiences and artists. Through readings, guest speakers and case studies, with particular emphasis on emerging media technologies, business practice and live art administration, "Advanced Topics..." will arm students with the critical, historical, managerial and curatorial tools necessary to produce work in the contemporary cultural economy, with particular emphasis on memes, think tanks, and the relationship between the state and art. This class seeks to situate arts curation and production within histories of cultural practice, management and technology, and ultimately aims to endow student producers with the tactical, critical and strategic acumen necessary to thrive in an arts sector in flux.

TAPS 1281A. Director/Designer Collaborative Studio.

Students will explore the relationship between director and designer within the production process. The main objective is to improve collaboration and production output by learning the language, tools, and skills involved in each area of discipline so as to enhance creative output. Enrollment limited to 17 students.

TAPS 1281C. Memory Plays: Theatricality and Time.

This course will read philosophy and critical theory about memory and time beside dramatic works and performance art that take up the topic of history, repetition, and temporality in live art. Readings will be selected from Sophocles, Aristotle, Shakespeare, Noh, Freud, Benjamin, Bergson, Brecht, Muller, Stein, Duras, Homi Bhabha, Paula Vogel, Suzan-Lori Parks, W. G. Sebald, Gilles Deleuze, Thomas King, Philip Deloria, Coco Fusco, Diana Taylor, Charles Ludlam, Tching Hsieh, Wooster Group, Spiderwoman Theatre, Ubu and the Truth Commission, Errol Morris, Robin Soans, and Erik Ehn to ask about time, memory, history, act, Mneme, anamnesis, recognition, and "reconciliation."

TAPS 1281D. Place-Based Dance and Performance.

How can movement practices excavate buried histories and ignored rhythms to invite new understandings of place? In this hybrid studio-seminar course, we will develop critical and creative tools for making public performances that engage local sites through the body. Students will encounter site-specific techniques drawn from dance, performance art, and sculpture, as well as interdisciplinary decolonizing methods for doing place-based research. The class culminates in collaborative performance projects based on extensive research with a local site. This course is open to all who are interested in developing embodied methods of engaging with place and the public.

TAPS 1281E. Directing Theory and Practice.

Directing Theory and Practice is a hybrid academic and studio class designed to introduce students to the history, theory, and practice of the director's craft. Readings on the theoretical/practical methods of direction are examined closely in class discussions and directing projects. All students must serve as actors and directors throughout.

TAPS 1281F. Choreography ONE: Dancemaking Pre-Classic to Post-Modern.

This course introduces students to 20th century American choreographic methods. Drawing from key texts, improvisational games and dance scores, "Choreography ONE" examines influential choreographic pedagogues alongside major figures of Western dance history and key critical methods. Students will practice systems to make, discuss and critique dances while situating those modes in historical, cultural and performance context. All class members will receive optional lab time in the studio to respond to assignments and have the opportunity to partner with student lighting designers. This course will culminate in the performance of student work in the TAPS Fall Dance Concert.

TAPS 1281G. Queer Dance.

In this course we will study the intersections of dance studies and queer studies, in an inquiry into the emerging field of Queer Dance. What does dance do for queer studies? How does queer studies further dance studies? What constitutes dance as queer? Students will study, observe, examine, discuss, and at times participate in queer dance from a range of historical and global perspectives. Course readings are drawn from dance studies, critical race studies, gender and sexuality studies, and performance studies. Readings are complemented by screenings, movement exercises, and live performance. No prior dance or performance experience is necessary.

TAPS 1281H. Collaborations in Performance: Theory and Practice Moving Together.

This is a hybrid theory and practice course, where students will study and experiment with contemporary collaborative practices. We will investigate collaborations between people, disciplines, theories, practices, spaces, places, mediums, cultures, and institutions. Our readings and theoretical inquiries draw primarily from texts about dance-focused U.S. contemporary performance. Readings will serve as case studies for a series of collaborative projects and experiments. This course will culminate in a final paper and final performance study. Makers and collaborators of all disciplines are welcome. A curious, generous, and open approach to working with others is required. No prior dance or performance experience is necessary.

An introduction to the study and practice of core costume construction skills. Topics include basic machine, hand sewing and patterning techniques. Instructor overrides will not be provided until the start of class.

TAPS 1281O. Acting Outside the Box: Race, Class, Gender and Sexuality in Performance.

Examines the relationship between social and cultural identities and their representations in dramatic literature and performance. Students will be expected to read critical essays and plays, conduct research, and prepare to act in scenes that challenge the actor to confront the specifics of character and situation beyond the Eurocentric ideal. The goal is to strengthen the actor's ability to construct truly meaningful characters by removing any reliance of "type" and/or immediate "identification" with the characters they will portray. Open to Any Brown/RISD graduate/undergraduate student that has taken TAPS 0230/Acting or the equivalent. Students should be aware that this is a hybrid Research and Performance class which may be counted as either a Performance Studies/Theatre Arts course for credit. Instructor Permission is Required. TAPS 1281Z. Arts and Health: Practice.

This course focuses on the application of current research in neuroscience, education, narrative medicine, and best practices in the arts for persons with neurological disorders. Through site placements, students provide arts experiences (primarily dance and music) for persons with Parkinson's Disease (PD) and Autism Spectrum Disorders (ASD). The course also includes guest lecturers, readings, curriculum development, analyzing and developing research methodology, ethnographic research, and planning of and participation in a convening of artists, scientists and educators in an intergenerational exploration. Completion of TAPS 1281W highly recommended, but course may be taken with no prior experience in science, dance or music.

TAPS 1285. Film Acting.

This intermediate acting class is designed to introduce and develop the tools necessary for acting on camera; to examine the application of the screenplay as a blueprint for the finished film; and to pursue the process and demands of working under limited and quickly changing conditions. Utilizing an extensive library of screenplays, the class will study film scene analysis and preparation, pro-active choice, and heightened connection. They will develop and hone the skill to remain present and vital through multiple takes of the scene, keeping emphasis on process rather than presentation.

TAPS 1300. Advanced Set Design.

The examination of the working relationship between designer and director. An emphasis on the design abilities needed to communicate varied visual approaches. Developing the creative, theatrical vocabulary needed to turn a director's vision into a fully articulated set design. A substantial amount of plays will be read and researched. Drafting and model rendering techniques will be applied. Prerequisite: TAPS 1280F. Instructor approval required prior to registration. Enrollment limited to 10.

TAPS 1310. Advanced Modern Dance.

This course is designed for students with several years of dance experience in any genre. The purpose of this class is to endow students with technical mastery of current contemporary movement vocabularies, with emphasis on Release Technique and Bartenieff Fundamentals. Enrollment limited to 40. S/NC.

TAPS 1311. Dancers' Choice: Improvisational Frameworks for Intermediate and Advanced Movers.

Learning Goals: - The intention of this class is to practice complex improvisational dance frameworks within a cohort of experienced movers. Students must have previously completed at least one movement technique classes before enrolling. - To hone improvisation techniques (with emphasis on and guest master teachers instructing) on Contact Improvisation and Forsythe Improvisation Technologies, in anticipation of potential performance for live audiences. - To challenge and expand students' memory, capacity for rhythmic complexity, competence and comfort holding multiple, simultaneous, and occasionally contradictory game parameters. - To foster a professional work ethic that can withstand abundant physical, emotional and organizational challenges.

TAPS 1312. Contemporary Dance Forms - Intermediate/Advanced Studio.

Three times per week, we will come together for rigorous dance practice based in release techniques, contemporary floor work foundations, and somatic and improvisational modalities. Designed to build strength, efficiency, and inspire a large, expressive way of moving through a three-dimensional sense of the body, our work will include movement research from the practice of Contact Improvisation, choreographic/compositional explorations, and through challenging contemporary phrase work. The course has no formal pre-requisites. Students enrolling should have a degree of comfortability replicating phrase material as well as basic rolling, meeting the floor, and inversions. If in doubt, please shop the class ask questions.

TAPS 1315. Digital Design for the Theatre.

A comprehensive introduction to the use of two-dimensional computer aided tools to realize scenic design elements and diversify the designers' visual vocabulary. A thorough understanding of digital work-flow from concept development, input, to computer aided design and output will be achieved. The course will cover: Introduction to Drafting with Auto-cad and plotting, Introduction to the use of the Adobe Creative Suite including Photoshop, Illustrator and InDesign as they relate to set design and implementing designs in full-scale. We will also review Typography and basic Graphic Design elements and how they relate to scenic elements, scaling and technical applications.

TAPS 1320. Choreography.

Designed for those who have had some experience in composition and would like to work, under supervision, on making dances. Emphasizes making full-length dances for small and large groups and demands a sophisticated use of space, dynamics, and music. Further emphasis on viewing and interpreting contemporary works from a choreographic viewpoint. S/NC.

TAPS 1325. Experiments in Dance, Movement, and Performance.

This course introduces students to the histories and methodologies; meanings and functions of experimental choreography in specific artistic, social, and political contexts. We examine the ways in which choreographers and dancers have experimented with the traditions and forms of dance, by mapping a series of interdisciplinary gestures in relation to creative and critical fields. The course builds on a series of composition exercises and creative assignments to culminate with the making and showing of a dance performance. No experience of dance is required, but an interest in thinking and experimenting with the roles of dance across art, society, and academia.

TAPS 1330. Dance History: The 20th Century.

An exploration of the major figures and trends in modern dance. While the main focus of the course is on American Dance, attention is given to earlier European and other dance traditions that have contributed to the American dance heritage. May be of particular interest Americanists, art historians, dancers, and theatre majors.

TAPS 1330A. Way Too Much And Not Nearly Enough: Making Performance in The Post-Post-Dramatic.

The course will be an experimental studio, mixing theory and practice, to formulate a position beyond what's known in Europe as "post-dramatic theater." We will oscillate between discussion, assignments and practical studio work, learning from others and making our own work. The foundation will be addressing artists, writers and pop phenomena internationally with an emphasis on Europe and Israel. Building on these, the practical aspect will comprise of physical group work and home assignments. In learning to compose entanglements between image, sound, word, and space, we will sharpen our tools for reimagining the contemporary performative condition. In the final stage of the course, students will create their own performative études. Instructor permission required.

TAPS 1335. Movement Theory: Choreography, Modernity, Subjectivity.

This seminar examines theatrical choreography as a defining art of western modernity. Drawing from the publication of Chorégraphie in 1700—from the Greek khoreia (dancing) and graphein (writing)—as a system of dance notation, the course will follow the transformation of the relation between the score and the event; writing and moving; philosophy and dance from the Baroque period to contemporary experimentations. This course seeks to enable students to apply a diverse set of languages and concepts to the study of dance; to equip them with the critical tools through which to experience, analyze, and write on dance as a culturally meaningful practice.

TAPS 1338. Advanced FlexN.

After students have learned the history, foundation, and fundamentals of FlexN in the previous course, they will now work on execution of this style and continue to build on storytelling through dance now that they have touched the surface of an entirely new dance vocabulary. Elevating, developing, and exploring with this new dance vocabulary and culture to use dance as an outlet to tell a story in order to be heard, to bring awareness to different topics both personal and world events, to express stored emotions, and/or to simply have a release from their usual everyday routine and use their body in ways they never have before.

TAPS 1339. Embodied Anatomy.

This course introduces students to human anatomy through various modes of creative exploration. By utilizing somatic practices such as yoga, pilates and dance- students will gain a better understanding of "how and why" movement occurs. Class time will be split between discussion and experiential activities which will include movement based exercises and drawing. We will take an in-depth look at the human form- touching on injury prevention and how we can bridge the body/mind connection.

TAPS 1340. Dance Styles.

Students will be introduced to non-traditional and contemporary social dance practices. The class, which is ideal for students of all experience levels -- beginning, intermediate, and advanced -- features guest instructors who will bring their expertise and training to bear in the studio. Focus will be on dances from the Global South as well as from people of color in the US. Key tenets include; improvisation, polyrhythm, and geography. Students will learn to move their bodies in new directions.

TAPS 1340A. Native American Theatre: from Traditional Storytelling to the Modern Theater Movement.

This course examines Native American Theatre from origins of traditional storytelling to politics of race involved in Native theatre today. First, we will examine traditional storytelling from creation stories in literature and theatre. Second, we will study interactions with Europeans with the Doctrine of Discovery, Native American boarding schools systems, outlawing of traditional culture and how Native culture survived in these systems. These topics will be explored through Native literature and Native plays. Next, the course considers how the public, and the media, support the distortions of Native images. Finally, the course concludes by examining the modern era of Native Theatre and the Declaration of the Rights on Indigenous Peoples. Instructor permission required.

TAPS 1341. Introduction to Ballet.

An introduction to the classical ballet vocabulary and basic movement patterns. We will focus on maintaining correct body alignment while increasing fitness and coordination, and develop a deeper appreciation for ballet in the context of the liberal arts. No prior ballet or dance experience is necessary for this course, but dancers who would like to brush up on basics are also welcome.

TAPS 1345. Dance and the Visual Arts after 1960: Performing the Everyday, Choreographing the Museum.

This course examines the mutual influences between the fields of dance and the visual arts since 1960. It surveys a series of artworks spanning early minimal art, happenings, and Judson Dance Theatre to contemporary global experiments in choreographing museal spaces. How can we map the "close correspondence" between choreographic and visual art practices across the performance of pedestrian bodies, dancing sculptures, and relational encounters? Students are invited to experiment collectively with dance archiving methodologies, to write about a performance event in the museum context, as well as to research the critical intersections between dance and art history; performance and curatorial studies.

TAPS 1348. Contemporary Dance Studio Project.

This advanced level course will provide an opportunity to deepen an existing skill set in contemporary dance and will ultimately culminate in the creation of new work for performance. Studio practice will focus on technical foundations rooted in postmodern modalities - somatics, Release Techniques, contemporary floorwork, and contemporary partnering - and offer exposure to diverse improvisatory frameworks and choreographic tools for the dancer and dancemaker. The personal growth of each participant will be valued as well as the pursuit of company cohesion and collaboration. This half-credit course can be repeated for credit. TAPS 1415. 13 Positions.

A lab exploring the physical, aesthetic and performative relationship of the body to a student's cultural cosmology. We will also look at certain (so-called) traditional aspects to successful forms (a performance, a dance, a film-video, a piece of writing, a painting, sculpture...) and then attempt to break it down and reframe this tradition with a discipline (rigor) that evokes accidents and the inexplicable. A lab that examines how the creative process is thought about, considered and looked upon, watched, inside and out. A fresh outlook, (shared) labor and or proposition on how to construct/deconstruct the right/wrong/right art work.

TAPS 1425. Queer Performance.

This seminar will examine the many meanings of queer performance. We will consider queerness as it is performed in a range of aesthetic genres— theater, music, dance, performance art, digital media—as well as in everyday vernacular contexts. We will explore how the interdisciplinary academic field of queer studies has turned to performance and performativity as key modes through which gender and sexuality are expressed. The class will place a particular emphasis on queer of color, trans*, and crip/queer approaches and cultural practices, addressing how queerness intersects with other axes of social difference, including race, class, and ability.

TAPS 1430. Russian Theatre and Drama.

An overview of Russian theatre and drama from the 18th century to the late 20th century. Emphasis on plays as texts and historical documents, and on theatrical conditions, productions, and innovations. All readings are in English. Russian area studies concentrators are encouraged to enroll. Instructor permission required.

Interested students must register for MES 1450.

TAPS 1480. Sweating Infrastructure: Cultures of Support in Dance and Live Performance.

As the income gap in the US has grown, the possibility of a career in the performing arts has become increasingly less viable for a significant percentage of the population. Issues of arts funding, labor, and professionalization have been debated across academic disciplines and by arts organizers who experience these instabilities firsthand. Researching infrastructure through a dance studies lens, this course reframes the role of embodied action, interaction and assembly in sustaining enabling environments for the arts. By reviewing literature and interviewing arts professionals, this project evidences how people “sweat” the problem of sustaining art work differently on sociocultural grounds.

TAPS 1485. The Activist Body.

The current explosion of activist activity on and beyond college campuses has been called a “movement moment” (McCarthy, 2017), signaling an urgent need to address what it means to be a politically responsive body in the world today. This course examines activism as a topic and performance practice rooted in the body’s capacity to disrupt the political status quo. Building from the growing literature on protest and social movement in dance and performance studies, students will theorize activism and agentic embodiment, analyze cultural events that claim activist intentions, and body forth activist strategies and manifestos in weekly movement sessions.

TAPS 1500A. Advanced Playwriting: Invitation to the Devout Life..

A practice-based class designed to promote prompt, connected and original writing for the live environment. We move through the regular practice of assorted exercises to the development of a completed script by the end of the term. Inquiry is guided by selected readings in esthetic theory, philosophy and theology (Anne Carson, St. Vincent de Paul, Simone Weil, others). Previous playwriting experience preferred. Instructor permission required.

TAPS 1500H. Advanced Playwriting.

This course brings together students of diverse writing backgrounds to build conversation and experimentation around multiple narrative techniques. Classes include craft exercises as well as readings from a range of texts—all to look deeper at how story-worlds are built. TAPS 1500I. Screenwriting.

Screenwriting is a course designed to familiarize the neophyte screenwriter with the basic principles of writing for the silver-screen. By closely examining produced films, in-depth readings of both good and bad scripts, and through the writing of our own, we will gain an understanding of how screenplays are written, and written well. The course will provide a foundation in the basics of the three-act structure, dramatic action, character arc, the revision process, and an introduction to the business of screenwriting. By the end of the semester we will have produced and polished a 10 page/minute manuscript. Enrollment limited to 17.

TAPS 1500J. Script Adaptation.

This class aims to develop skills and techniques for the creation of new dramatic works based upon previously published or performed material. The unit explores the process of creating a script from previously published source material. To achieve this goal, we will explore the problems inherent in creating dramatic material from source material of various forms. The module will enhance core skills in scriptwriting, dramaturgy and script analysis. Weekly classes will include lecture and discussion, readings, film screenings and writing exercises. Enrollment limited to 17.

TAPS 1500L. Acting Together on the World Stage: Writing and Political Performance.

Practical research in art for social change, with an emphasis on writing and composition, resulting in a series of solo and group devised performances (or well articulated proposals). Each week, in-session writing and devising exercises, coupled with a discussion of critical readings and case histories, build to projects that may be constructed solo or in small groups. Final projects may take the form of carefully constructed, achievable plans for long-range implementation. Students will be required to attend special workshops, field trips, and performances as scheduled through this semester; this schedule will be available at the first class. Enrollment limited to 12.

TAPS 1500M. Advanced Playwriting: Guhahamuka.

Guhahamuka is a Kinyarwanda word meaning “breathlessness,” sometimes applied to the wordlessness that befalls the survivors of trauma. We will progress through a series of graduated exercises design to work-out the fundamentals of writing for the live encounter, with an emphasis on the uses of testimony, and language that pushes into spaces where language doesn’t fit, doesn’t belong, fails, converts itself to different energies. How a writer’s technique images spiritual practice, and avails of the useful impossibilities of incarnation and transcendence. Taking on a practical language from contemplative traditions as means of ordering the writer’s craft.

TAPS 1500N. Advanced Undergraduate Playwriting: Experiments in Time.

For centuries, from Pedro Calderón to Ntozake Shange and Caryl Churchill, playwrights have manipulated time to tell stories and create dynamic play-worlds. This class will challenge playwrights to build non-linear time into their plays and use specific approaches to “time-telling” to supercharge content. Students will read plays, essays and engage in time-based theater experiments to explore perspectives that challenge our human-ego-driven experience of time. How is time embodied? How are we programmed to experience time as a Western capitalist value system? How can we use non-linear time in our plays as a radical political act? Students will complete 3 short projects during the course, including two one-act plays and one piece of site-specific or performance art.

TAPS 1500P. Asian American Theater Making.

This course frames Asian American theater-making as a dynamic assertion of presence, autonomy and complexity against and beyond a backdrop of cultural, legal and historical exclusion, erasure and assimilation in the United States. In investigating theatrical practices and contexts made about, by and/or for Asian Americans, we explore the in/stability of identity as embodied sites of ambivalence, tension and solidarity. How do Asian American theater artists integrate, reject and transcend the myriad expectations of identity and representation? As scholars and artists, we will read plays, witness and create performances, discuss critical and historical essays and artifacts, and interact with active practitioners across a wide spectrum of Asian American theater-making. Open to advanced undergraduates/graduate students.

TAPS 1500Q. Black Expressive Cultures.

This course explores black expressive cultures in diasporan perspective.

This course focuses on learning to audition for scenes and scripts from film and television from the vast array of the entertainment industry. Work will cater to each student's individual needs, choosing material that both strengthens and stretches them. We will work on preparing scenes for an audition: in person, on zoom, self-tapes and cold auditions. We will discuss over-preparing and under-preparing and how to dress and present yourself. This work should complement and enhance previous acting studies and help you with an understanding about the nuanced shifts actors need to make when auditioning for the camera, and the difference between auditioning and playing the role. Your professor is a working actor who will provide examples of what she is teaching in real time. The semester will culminate with 3 audition pieces from both media filmed for your use. S/NC

TAPS 1500S. Performance and Media After Reality.

This class considers crises of "reality" in theatre, photography, television, and digital media. Reality media—like realist drama and reality television—and reality-breaking technologies, from electric stage lighting to the social internet, stage worlds in which some subjects are more real than others. We will ask: how do works articulate reality? How do assertions of reality support political life? Can alternate realities challenge carceral and colonial realisms? What does it mean to be seen as, or to be, unreal?

This is a discussion-based class with ongoing creative and critical response work. Enrollment will be determined at the first session.

TAPS 1510. Inventing Directing.

"Inventing Directing" is a course that deals with how a director gets thought into stage space via: different emphases communicated to actors; attention to the life of objects; exploration of the languages of stage space; accessing personal experience to deepen point of view; drawing upon film, the practical application of theory, and literature; vertical thinking; and spatializing time. The course will involve practical exercises and work on both scenes from plays and on material drawn from other sources.

TAPS 1520. Seminar in Theatre Arts.

Seminar designed for senior theatre arts concentrators, required during Semester VII. Topics focus on career planning and theatre arts subjects not dealt with in other courses. Enrollment limited to seniors.

Interested students must register for GNSS 1540.

TAPS 1600. Dramaturgy.

This course is an introduction to dramaturgy and script analysis for advanced undergraduates. It will introduce a variety of plays and critical approaches to dramatic texts and performances with emphasis on culturally divergent dramaturgies, adaptation and textual analysis for performance.

TAPS 1610. Political Theatre of the Americas.

This course explores political theatre and performance in Latin America, the US and Canada. The primary concern will be the use of performance in indigenous rights, queer rights, and gender equity campaigns as well as general critiques of socioeconomic inequity. The course examines the strategies used by actors in theatrical performances, performance art, and political protests that use the tools of performance. Exploration is of the rich relationship between politics and performance. There are no prerequisites, but one course in either Latin American Studies or Theatre and Performance Studies is recommended.

TAPS 1630. Performativity and the Body: Staging Gender, Staging Race.

This course examines how we develop and interrogate different meanings around our bodies through performance practices in everyday life and on stage. Specifically, we analyze how race and gender are regulated, reinforced, reworked, and subverted through embodied modes of performance. We explore how raced and gendered bodies are constructed, reconstructed, and deconstructed through everyday performances of self from fashion to food to surgery. We will also examine works by playwrights, visual artists, and theatre artists who deploy performance practices to make, unmake, and remake historical, social, and political understandings of our bodies as raced and gendered.

TAPS 1640. Theatre and Conquest in Greater Mexico: From Cortes to NAFTA.

Explores the intimate relationship between theatre and conquest in the Americas as contained in missionary accounts, plays, performances and visual art from Cortés arrival to the present. Students will analyze plays and performances that stage the Spanish Conquest, consider the theatrical procedures of the conquest and examine theatrical representation as a methodology of conquest in the Americas.

TAPS 1650. 21st Century American Drama.

Course is designed to familiarize students with contemporary American playwriting from 2000-2005. We will explore how these plays reflect our current moment with attention to conceptions of gender, sexuality, national identity, trauma and memory. Playwrights may include Jorge Cortinas, Sarah Ruhl, Tony Kushner, Juilana Francis, Sabina Berman, and Carl Hancock Rux.

TAPS 1670. Latinx Theatre + Performance.

This course will be an introduction to Latino/a theatre concentrating on the following themes: borders, diaspora and exile, political and personal identities, sexuality, gender and violence, and latino re-imagining of U.S. and Latin history. We will read Chicano/a, Cuban American and Nuyorican drama and performance art. No prerequisites.

TAPS 1680. Performance, Politics, and Engagement.

A survey course in engaged and political performance; this seminar investigates social practice, political theatre, and dance as points of entry into contemporary questions in ecology, ethics, gender, racialization, sexuality, perception, labor, and value. Course materials include artists' and scholars' writings as well as scores, scripts, theoretical writings, photographs, films, reenactments, and performance procedures. Assignments include research projects on art and social movements, performance tasks, and scholarly writing projects. An existing performance or arts practice is not required. The course may be especially relevant to TAPS students, the Engaged Scholars Program, and Visual Art. There are no prerequisites.

TAPS 1690. Performance, Art, and Everyday Life.

Provides an introduction to performance-based art. Some knowledge of the historical avant-garde is required. The class will explore site-specific work, time-based work, life art, body art, instruction art and a variety of intermedial artwork. Theories of "theatricality" and "performativity" will be explored as will expressive properties of repetition, excess, mimesis, banality, mobility, framing, failure and shock. Enrollment limited to 16.

TAPS 2120. Revolution as a Work of Art.

A study of Russian revolutionary culture and new personhood, ca. 1905-1930, with readings from Russian fiction, philosophy, art criticism, dramatic and political theory, and cultural and theatre history. Topics include the revolution of the spirit, the culture of the future, iconography and spectacle, charismatic authority, and revolutionary terror. For graduate students and qualified juniors and seniors. All readings are in English. Those who can may read some materials in Russian. Enrollment limited to 20.

TAPS 2200A. Abstraction and Resistance.

A study of the uses of abstraction in modernist and postmodern theatre and drama, film, painting, and narrative fiction and of the engagement of resistance as a performative strategy for conceptualizing such nominally unframed and alogical texts. The works of selected theatre directors and playwrights, philosophers and theorists, novelists, filmmakers, and artists are examined and discussed.

TAPS 2200B. Neoliberalism and Performance.

This course will explore the relationship between performance (dance, theatre, performance art, public art) and Neoliberal economic and governmental policies and practices. We will place special emphasis on how the arts participate in modes of labor flexibility, globalization, entrepreneurship, governmentality and surveillance as well as how these forms critique these phenomenon. Critical readings will include political theory, play and performance texts and videos and economic theory.

TAPS 2200E. Historiography.

This graduate seminar is dedicated to a thorough examination of theater and performance historiography. The course will consider methodologies of writing about the past, concentrating on analyzing the writing of history and examining how historical information is obtained, imagined and disseminated in our field, where embodied practice is crucial to thinking. This course will necessarily consider how historiography is understood with the discipline of history as well as performance and theatre studies.

TAPS 2200G. Performance, Photography, and the Live Border.

What are the limits of approaching live performance as essentially ephemeral? What is at stake in the lines drawn between media histories and theatre histories that account for the "still"? Questions such as these will be posed across media as we explore histories of photography and tableaux vivant, as well as critical theories in performance studies, visual studies, art history, media studies, and theatre studies. We will look at images documenting violence, images re-presenting documented violence, and violence to documentary images in the course of a broader conversation about the "life" or "liveness" of the still. Enrollment limited to 20.

TAPS 2200I. Wittgenstein, Writing and Performance.

Performance is the ideal forum in which to discuss Wittgenstein's philosophy, especially as the latter involves rigorous close reading of the physical and metaphysical identities of words, thought and action in the construction of discernible and livable roles and courses of action and understanding within the given circumstances of the mysterious world into which we are born. Wittgenstein's aphoristic writing, which creates a poetic structure, along with the necessary incompleteness of Wittgenstein's thought expression and the wide range of philosophical interpretations of his work by numerous artists and theorists underscore the liveliness of Wittgenstein's writing as creative texts in themselves. Enrollment limited to 17 juniors, seniors, and graduate students. Instructor permission required.

TAPS 2200K. Digital Performance (MUSC 2210).

Interested students must register for MUSC 2210.

TAPS 2200N. Liveness: Performance and Neoanimism in Late Capitalism.

Has the "affect economy's" 24/7 live shifted medial maps distinguishing live from object arts? As animacy and inanimacy warp, do orientations to duration, participation, and relation shift? Can liveness extend to the Paleolithic in today's "new materialist" imaginary? If "Cinema is Dead," does it join theatre as a zombie form? Modernist "animism," "totemism," and "primitivism" provide a backdrop to recent returns to animism in Chen, Bennet, Latour and others. Does theatre's separation from ritual and possession demand rethinking via "relationscapes" and the critical turn to affect theory? Art/performance, theatre, cinema will be under discussion, from Euripides Bacchae to Gucci Bacchae.

TAPS 2200T. Who Else: mimesis, performance, psyche.

In this course, we'll read in, around, and against psychoanalytic theory to think about how theories of the subject, and especially of desire and pleasure, have intersected with ideas about aesthetics and performance. Throughout, we'll pay special attention to constructions of alterity—difference from the self—and how love, art and performance work in relation to different kinds of difference.

TAPS 2200Z. Embodiment, Materiality, and Cultural Production.

This course investigates embodiment as one of many materials engaged in contemporary art and performance practices. We will explore concepts of body/mind, the haptic, interiority, intersubjectivity, experience, spatiality, temporality, relationality, liveness, and futurity and how it occurs within a wide variety of cultural productions. Course readings are drawn from dance studies, critical race studies, gender and sexuality studies, performance studies, and museum and curatorial studies. Our theoretical inquiries will culminate in the practical experience of crafting and producing an exhibition and/or live public event. No prior performance or art-making experience is required, however, students with active art practices are encouraged to utilize this opportunity to create and present their own works.

TAPS 2300. Pedagogy Seminar.

This half-credit course is designed to support MFA Playwriting students preparing to begin teaching the following year, as well as TAPS PhD students as they prepare to teach, begin to teach, or continue teaching. The intent is to offer a space for students to reflect on teaching, bring concerns, and offer each other feedback on pedagogical issues; to introduce resources (from Brown and not) that can help with teaching, both methodologically and practically; and to workshop concrete teaching tasks, such as building and executing lesson plans, grading, and designing syllabi. Students in the course will also observe classes taught by three other instructors during the semester.

This course is a combination of workshop and seminar, which MFA Playwriting students take every semester in residence. Students write and revise a new play over the course of the term, sharing work periodically. Weekly reading assignments (plays, theoretical texts, other literary works, works in other media) are designed to expand and unsettle your grasp of this art form. Requirements include detailed written and oral feedback, lively participation, presentations, and written exercises. May be taken multiple times for credit. Other graduate students and undergraduates may contact the instructor to request admission to the course, based on a writing sample and relevant experience. S/NC.

TAPS 2505. Fundamentals of Acting: Modern and Contemporary Realism.

This course will cover three modalities. Acting/Scene Study: Realism will provide a fundamental understanding of Stanislavski-based acting within the realistic style, developing: a working understanding of a five-week rehearsal process; a system of text analysis based upon events and cause-and-effect; beginning the work of integrating vocal and physical technique into each individual student's acting method. Voice and Speech I will provide the basis of the actor's three years of vocal training, gaining an understanding of the actor's personal vocal blocks as they relate to how the breath resides in the body. Contact Improvisation will investigate improvisation movement through physical contact.

TAPS 2515. Acting Technique: Fundamentals of Physical Awareness.

All Voice and Speech work has two underlying goals: for the actor to be heard; for the actor to be understood. A daily warmup, rigorous drilling, the learning of IPA, and its application in Standard American dialect will build muscle to strengthen your instrument for clarity of speech and train your ear to the nuances of speech sounds, invaluable for dialect and character work. The Alexander Technique uses gentle guidance to enable movement to take place unencumbered by habitual effort. Voice, Speech and Alexander work together to enable the actor to produce clear, tension-free sound.

TAPS 2535. Directing 1: Fundamentals in Analysis and Action for Brown/Trinity MFA Actors and Directors.

This course is designed to activate the mind of the director. It is a detailed investigation of the creative process and the beginning of the foundation for communication with actors, designers and audiences in the making of live performance with text. MFA students will participate in Directing Lab, rehearsing as assigned.

TAPS 2545. Dramaturgy.

This course will be an introduction to dramaturgy advanced undergraduates and MFA students. The course will introduce a wide variety of play and critical approaches to dramatic texts and performances with emphasis on culturally divergent dramaturgies, embodied dramaturgy, adaptation and textual analysis for performance. This course meets for 2 of the 3 hours with TAPS 1600 Dramaturgy for MFA students; Graduate Students will take Deb Salem Smith's Playwriting course for the final hour of their course credit.

TAPS 2555. Advanced Acting: Modern and Contemporary Realism.

Purpose: To provide a deepened understanding of the principles of Stanislavski-based acting within the realistic style; to reinforce and practice a working understanding of a five-week rehearsal process; to develop a system of text analysis based upon events and cause-and-effect; to understand and deepen the process of individual personalization; to continue the work of integrating vocal and physical technique into each individual student's acting method.

TAPS 2565. Acting Technique II: Strength, Expansion and Articulation.

This course is open only to students of the Brown University/Trinity Rep MFA Consortium program. Continued studio exploration of various dance and movement techniques and vocal articulation and practice, designed to promote effective, healthy usage of the actor's instrument, as well as an introduction to dialect work and stage combat. This course includes separate classes in Speech, Alexander Technique and Movement Technique. Mandatory S/NC.

TAPS 2575. Theatre History in a Changing Present.

This course will be an introduction to the offerings in theatre history, theory and practice offered at Brown University and environs in relation to a changing American Theatre. Each week will feature an original guest speaker from TAPS or other affiliate departments/institutions to expand your understanding. First Look Production is included in this course. This production process is a companion production experience to course work done in the fall semester. Students will experience the full process of revising and staging original works, with opportunities to work as actor and/or director, playwright, producer—actively applying conceptual knowledge gained from first semester courses.

TAPS 2585. Directing II: Collaborative Communication.

Building on Directing I: Fundamentals in Analysis and Action this course focuses on communication between actors and directors. Methodologies are tested and explored through practice in studio scene work. Rehearsal preparation, diagnostic processes are developed and practiced, and a detailed exploration of the directors preparation is the final project.

TAPS 2605. Fundamentals of Acting: Shakespeare and Classical Verse.

An introduction to the conventions of classical English verse performance, including elements of meter, heightened language, metaphor and rhetoric, with the goal of expanding the actor's understanding of the principles of realistic acting to the rigorous demands of Shakespearean and other classical texts. This course includes separate classes in Scene Study, Voice and Movement, all designed to support and promote heightened poetic expressivity in performance. S/NC

TAPS 2615. Acting Technique III: Poetic Expression.

Vocal and physical work designed to support the exploration of classical verse acting, with an emphasis on expanding a range of performance beyond realism. Rhythm, fluidity, presence, power, clarity of thought and the expression of emotional depth through language and movement is the focus of studio practice. Also included is introduction to singing technique. This course includes separate classes in Movement Technique, Alexander Technique and Singing.

TAPS 2625. Playwriting Dramaturgy Practicum.

This course is advanced playwriting and script analysis for second year students. We will look deeper at the tools and craft of playwriting. We will begin by exploring adaptation—what are the bones and tissues of a given story? How can that body be transformed into a theatrical story? What is required? What changes? What is the relationship between form and content? We will transition from adaptation to writing original full-length works.

TAPS 2635. Directing III: The Director's Vision.

This course is for Brown/Trinity MFA Actors and Directors and focuses on the vision of the director. Deep investigation in complicated language, verse, period. Continued development in collaboration with actors as well as personal mission, and vision. Seminar discussion of current work in process and production, exploration of contemporary dramatic forms and practitioners, issues in the art and craft of directing, diagnostic and exchange around the breaking of boundaries and best practices. Seminar runs concurrently with Directors Lab, Director projects, including thesis, and verse.

TAPS 2645. Fall Directing Practicum.

This credit is designed to build the director's skills in preparation, script analysis, and rehearsal processes in the making of a Shakespeare production which tours into the Providence School System, a kind of "mobile unit" production. This project has very clear parameters and minimal design to center the work on the embodiment of the text by the actors. It is intended to center the actor in the making of work, requires a deep understanding of the text through analysis, and an edit to get it to a length that will support the tour.

TAPS 2655. Advanced Acting: Shakespeare and Classical Verse.

In-depth study of the methods and practice of classical acting, with the goal of developing professional-level skill and mastery of the form. Actors work toward total integration of the physical and vocal instrument into a unified whole to achieve complete expressivity of thought, emotion, character and imagination through poetic language and vigorous, purposeful and creative physicality. This course includes separate classes in Scene Study, Voice and Movement Composition.

TAPS 2665. Acting Technique IV: Creativity and Virtuosity.

A culmination of the technical practice of the previous three semesters, with the goal of achieving a professional level of technical expertise. Through mastery of the vocal and physical instrument, the actor is prepared to fulfill creative, imaginative and athletic choices in physical and vocal performance. This course includes separate classes in Alexander Technique, Singing and Movement/Devising.

TAPS 2675. Advanced Playwriting.

We will do craft exercises and close readings of texts to look deeper at how works are built. We will explore, discover, and map the mechanics of a diverse range of texts. You will have the opportunity to experiment with those same mechanics to create your own pieces. Through energetic workshop-style classes, you will experience the full process of drafting, hearing aloud, and then revising original works. In charting and defining others' voices, you will discover your own particular voice and what makes it valuable and necessary.

TAPS 2695. Spring Directing Practicum.

Spring Directing Practicum is the spring repertory production in the end of the fourth semester directed by each MFA Directing Student. This production is fully designed with a professional design team and presented to the public at the Pell Chafee Performance Center in cooperation with Trinity Rep.

TAPS 2705. Third Year Practicum: The Actor as Creator.

Based upon a foundation of mastery in realistic and classical acting styles, actors engage in an exploration of historical, modern and contemporary dramatic literature and theatre practice with a goal of developing a personal aesthetic voice that pushes the boundaries of convention and tradition in their mature theatre practice. This course includes separate classes in Scene Study, Voice, Movement and Alexander Technique, as well as participation in Director's Lab. S/NC

TAPS 2715. Professional Development and Performance.

This course builds upon the first two years of acting technique training. Students will use the foundational technique acquired as they add the critical component of preparation to enter the professional theater, television, film, and audiobook industries. Actors will select material for themselves and their colleagues in preparation for spring Showcase rehearsals. Students will cut/arrange selected material to an appropriate length, propose several partner pairings for each scene, and work on further adaptations and pairings as necessary. Workshops with industry professionals in casting, entertainment unions, agencies, self-taping, audiobook work, on-camera technique and auditioning will be scheduled throughout the semester. TAPS 2765. Professional Development and Performance - Spring.

This course is a continuation of work begun in the fall semester. Students in this course will rehearse scenes selected in the fall semester, choose and rehearse songs or musical material, and stage both for their professional Showcase. They will perform their Showcase for our community in Providence, and travel to New York and Los Angeles to perform for industry professionals. In addition, several single and multi-day workshops with industry professionals may also be scheduled throughout the course of the semester. These workshops will be scheduled based on the availability of industry guests.
